Answer these questions with complete sentences on a separate piece of paper. NB pg 12

1. The article described some possible changes in how people will communicate, work, and live in the year 2025. Identify some of the future technology trends and innovations mentioned in the article.

2. Describe the safeguards that will be added to future technology to protect individual privacy. Do you think the methods of keeping records in 2025 will be, as the article states, “far safer and more private than anything we have ever put on paper”?

3. According to the author of the article, how will Americans manage to preserve their privacy despite technological innovations? Do you agree with the author’s suppositions about the American moral character?

4. American citizens still have expectations of privacy in their daily lives. What aspects of privacy do you take for granted today? Do you think these expectations represent a basic honesty in the American character?